GOVERNMENT RETAINED POWER AFTER FIRST SESSION OF MOCK PARLIAMENT OPPOSITION DEFEATED ON DIVISION

—Cross Benches Were Very Active Producing Much of the Humour—Mr. R.
T. Hackett Acted as Governor General—Mr. R. Calder Was the Speaker—
Bert Tremaine Clerk of the House—Sir Arthur Present During the Entire Session.

The Liberal Government of the Mock Parliament of McGill University is still in power. On a division taken on the speech from the throne after last night's stormy session, the count was found to be 127 to 121 in favour of the government.

The speech from the throne was read by Mr. John T. Hackett K. C. Governor General but was only adopted after much discussion and a plentiful amount of criticism on the part of the opposition. Mr. R. Calder K. C. was the speaker, while Bert Tremaine B. Comm. acted as clerk of the house.

The session was replete with exciting incidents and interruptions to speeches were frequent. Cries of louder greeted speakers of especially powerful voices, chairs were broken, and at times it seemed as if Bedlam itself had broken loose. But there were serious speeches as well to which the house listened with careful attention.

A member of His Majesty's most loyal opposition caused quite a stir when, stating that he thought it better to abandon party politics and vote in the interests of the Dominion, changed sides taking his seat with the government.

The ladies' gallery was crowded by an interesting body of women who throughout displayed a marked interest in what was going on.

Among those present at the session of Mock Parliament for the session was Sir Arthur Currie.

SPEECH FROM THRONE

"I charge you to discuss with gravest attitude and widest latitude of mind, those questions submitted for your consideration at this parliament; and I trust that your deliberation may result in blessings on the Canadian people," were the closing words of His Excellency Lord namment which was held in the hall-room of the Union last night.

Meeting in the somber draped hall befitting the dignity of the august body which it simulates, one of the most spirited sessions in the political history of McGill came to order at 8.45 p.m. at the command of Clerk of the House, Tremaine, who presented for initial consideration the question of the election of a Speaker. The Government moved through its leader the Rt. Hon. Mr. Wells, and the Opposition graciously seconded through its chief, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Batshaw that the Honourable Mr. R. L. Calder K. C. be elected Speaker of the House of Commons.

"I trust that I may be imbued with grace that I may control you wisely even in your most emotional utterances," said the newly elected Speaker before taking his seat immediately preceding the Speech from the Throne.

The flutter in the Assembly was killed by the three knocks on the door of the chamber, which is the time-honoured custom which precedes the announcement from the Knight of the Black Rod that "The Governor-General waits without."

Escorted by the Clerk of the House and the leaders of the Government and the Opposition, His Excellency took his seat on the throne while the Assembly stood at attention.

"Honourable gentlemen of the House of Commons, I welcome you to your important duties in this another session of Parliament. For three or four years after the World War, this country passed through a period of depression and unrest. The grave problems which confronted her were met fearlessly by her statesmen and to-day the clouds of unrest are gone, and unemployment is disappearing. As political leaders may we always cherish the memory of those who gave their lives that Canada might be free.

"Canada stood aghast at the recent catastrophe which fell upon the Empire of Japan and will look with earnest solicitation that it may resume its important place among nations.

"In the city of London the most important conference of British Commonwealth, that has ever been held, has just come to a close; and while its deliberations have been veiled in secrecy we may expect that the Conference will have a great influence upon trade. "During the course of this Session, my Government will submit for your approval, motions embodying the following policies:—

1. Economic pressure on France to secure her withdrawal from the Ruhr and acceptance of the following: (a) The fixing of Germany's capacity to pay, and methods of payment, by an international commission of experts, with a perfectly free hand. (b) The handling of the problem of Germany's economic and financial restoration to the League of Nations for settlement on lines similar to those followed in America.

II. Emphatic opposition to a monarchist Restoration in Germany. III. Recognition of the Russian Government.

IV. Measures to stop emigration from Canada to the United States, and to bring suitable immigrants to Canada only as fast as this country can absorb them. Together with a more equitable distribution of future immigrants.

V. Protection of home industries from unfair competition; securing of revenue; fostering of Imperial trade; (Continued on page 4)

THANKSGIVING DINNER GIVEN BY AMERICANS

Atmosphere of Patriotism and Good Spirit

CONSUL PRESENT

Dance at the End of the Feast

Under the most sumptuous and impressive surroundings was the annual American Thanksgiving dinner held last evening at six-thirty in the Venetian Gardens. The place was decorated with Old Glory and the atmosphere which prevailed was indicative of true devotion and patriotism to the country to those who were gathered. Here and there were detected casual ebullitions and threats to old man Bacchus to whom a good deal of justice was rendered. To enhance the import of the occasion there were present such distinguished and popular individuals as Dr. Horst Oertel, Mr. Von Wagner, and Mr. Hetherington of MacDonald College and A. G. Holstead American Consul at Montreal.

At the very outset of the banquet the president of the American Club Robert Hamilton announced that it was the good fortune of the club to have these worthies present and regretted the fact that the American Consul could stay only a few moments. Mr. Holstead was then introduced and explained that the American Club for Women had also extended to him a previous invitation to a Thanksgiving festival. In the few minutes that he remained he left a profound impression on those who were present. He paid tribute to Mr. Harding, the late president of the United States. A man with high ideals of justice and democracy. During his administration Mr. Harding was severely criticized by the theorists and impractical idealists but upon the death of same his name was extolled and his value to American manhood was realized. FINAL DEBATE HELD BY ARTS UNDERGRADS

Won Championship

SEATS FILLED

Mr. MacDermot Spoke to Students of Arts Faculty

Cohen and Kellaway, representing Arts '24, won the debating championship of the Arts faculty, upholding the view that "the Parliamentary System of Great Britain is more truly democratic than that of the United States." The debate was held at the meeting of the Arts Undergraduate Society last night in the ball room of the Union.

Teakle after bringing the meeting to order announced the subject of the debate and introduced the first speaker of the affirmative, Cohen.

Cohen said there are varying degrees of democracy. In the debate he was going to deal with democracy of government. The Americans have adopted democracy as their slogan and their claim to it is not unjustified. But owing to the American constitution there has not been the same development in the United States as there has been in Great Britain. There have been but two manifestations, one of universal suffrage, the other the attempted emancipation of the negroes. Cohen emphasized the word "attempted"; and the influence of the large financial trusts had lessened the amount of democracy during the past fifty years.

Cohen drew a parallel between the Labour parties in Great Britain and the United States. In both countries Labour is class conscious, powerful, well-organized, but only in Great Britain is it well represented.

He then turned from the practical to the theoretical. When the Constitution was drawn up there was a

THE CLASS AND THE UNIVERSITY

What would a university be without undergraduates? This is rather a peculiar question but the answer will lead us to a point, which we wish to discuss, and as a result will serve a purpose. A university without students would be a barren place, with a vacant uninteresting campus, haunted only by ghosts of the past. The class rooms, with stiff and empty seats, would not echo and re-echo with the solemn voices of professors, and numerous pieces of apparatus would stand in the laboratories unused, with their usefulness being wasted. Deep layers of dust would cover the masses of wisdom in old tomes and yellowing volumes and the various members of the staff might sit and carefully twirl their thumbs, seeking in vain for that much desired reverse motion—that is unless they had been gently dismissed with the label "not required." A few children with their nursemaids, would probably play idly about the historic paths, little thinking that they were romping on tragic ground. A solemn stillness seldom broken, would hang over the entire grounds like a funeral pall, and those who passed by would pay their last respects to a dead university.

In truth, then, the undergraduate body is an essential part of an institution of learning and this is something that each and every student should remember. We cannot get away from the fact. It is there and must be recognized. And as the students are essential it is equally true that their composite character is bound to play an important role in the general life of the university. We are brought together here by chance but with our coming we are automatically formed into one great group, bound by the bonds of learning, linked by the love of a common Alma Mater. But the quality of this union of students will vary by necessity and it is our duty to see that it is kept at the highest possible level. We have often heard of college spirit but do we realize what it means, have we ever thought upon what it actually depends? We personally think that its existence is absolutely dependent upon our individual relations with our fellow students. The greater the warmth of friendship and the more evident the desire for co-operation, so much more vital and real will be the spirit of the undergraduate body as a whole. This of course necessitates the participation of every individual and we would suggest that if good feeling is fostered and developed in every class in college the result will be far reaching and of much greater effect than we dare to predict. After all, we are similar to a regiment, divided into battalions, companies and platoons, and if there is lack of unity, petty jealousy and absence of harmony, even in the smallest division, then the whole is liable to suffer, to be dragged down to a lower level, than the one upon which it would otherwise rest. Know every member of your class. Work for and with your fellows and you need not worry about college spirit for that spirit will then take care of itself.

CONDENSED COMMENT

At six o'clock last night all nominations for positions on the Students' Council were handed in to the Secretary. In three instances there are to be contests and indications promise some stubborn battles. That in the Faculty of Science will probably be outstanding for four men are in the race for the office. The contest in Arts also promises to be close but that in Dentistry is somewhat of an unknown quantity. In the remaining two cases the vacancies have been filled by acclamation, the men taking office without opposition. In Medicine, especially, this was unexpected as this section of the University is usually productive of exciting political campaigns of the closest nature. To those men elected, however, we offer our congratulations and to those who will now launch their campaigns we wish the best of luck.

The Government survived the first session of the Mock Parliament but only by a narrow margin. We are informed, however, upon very good authority that at least several of the members of the Opposition voted more than once, when the count was being taken. If this is actually the case—and we say this in all seriousness—it is well that the Government was sustained, for honesty should be practised even though the Parliament is "mock." The evening, on the whole, was successful, for several good speeches were heard from the floor of the House. The opening meeting augurs well for the immediate future of Parliament.

ELECTRICAL CLUB TECHNICAL MEETING

"The Modern Street-car and its Maintenance" is the subject of the paper to be presented before the Electrical Club this afternoon.

The trip that the Fourth Year Electricals had to the "Youville Shops" this week aroused a very considerable interest in the construction and repairs of street-cars among them and it is very fortunate that Mr. Benjamin's paper is to follow along this same subject. "Ben" is a member of Science '24 and has worked in the Youville shops for about two years.

He has prepared what should be a splendid account of the ways that street-cars are built and rebuilt.

The paper will be of interest to third year men for the reason that it, more than any of the papers yet presented, deals exclusively with direct-current work.

The meeting is to start at 4.45 and the speaker is to be held to a certain time limit so that there will be an opportunity for questions and discussion.

MARITIME-WESTERN DANCE NEXT MONTH

At Venetian Gardens on December 17th

It has at last been definitely decided that the Maritime-Western dance will be held at the Venetian Gardens next month on the evening of Monday, December 17th. In choosing a place for the dance the executives investigated the possibilities of a number of places. It was found impossible to arrange a satisfactory night at the Union because the nights had already been filled and last night the Union House Committee definitely ended the negotiations. The Venetian management has been anxious to have the dance held there again this year and its offer was accepted at a late hour last night.

Members of the clubs which are bridging the gap between the East and the West will remember with pleasure the successful dance held last year at the Venetian and it is hoped that this year an equally successful function may be staged. The tickets will be on sale next week and will cost three dollars.

CLEVER SPEAKERS AMONG FRESHIES

Won First Four Places in Delta Sigma Contest

A delightful meeting of the Delta Sigma Society which took the form of an Impromptu Speaking Contest was held yesterday afternoon.

Miss K. Perrin presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, Miss Massey-Bayly, who left yesterday morning for Kingston where she is to take part in the Intercollegiate Debate with Queen's.

There were many volunteers for the contest, notably a large number of students from the first year which, by the way, has proved itself very proficient in the art of public speaking, having won the first inter-class debate, Miss M. Perry opened the contest by choosing a slip of paper bearing the name of her subject and drew from the room to ponder over the matter. At the end of two minutes she returned and delivered a clever Impromptu speech on "Public Speaking."

A number of speakers followed, all of whom gave interesting talks on exceedingly varied subjects, the topics ranging all the way from "Church Union," to "Cold Feet," and "Styles of Hairdressing."

After the speaker had concluded, the Judges, Miss M. C. Edwards, Miss Birckett and Prof. Latham, retired to make their decision, which was awaited in great suspense.

On the return of the Judges, Prof. Latham also made an Impromptu speech, which, he said, he would limit to two minutes to be in keeping with the others. He then announced that the winner of the first prize was Miss MacSparrow, who had given a very interesting speech on "Sympathy" drawing on one of her experiences in Holland for an illustration. The second prize was awarded to Miss Scriver, whose subject had been "Has Science Done More Harm Than Good?" Miss Lyman and Miss Muller obtained very high honorable mention.

The first year is to be congratulated on winning both prizes and obtaining two honorable mentions.

The next meeting of the Society will take the form of a debate between third and fourth years and the winners of this will debate with first year for the interclass championship.

FOOTBALLERS WILL HOLD BIG BANQUET

To be in Honour of Coach Shaughnessy

On Saturday night McGill's warriors of the gridiron will hold a banquet hall of the Fitz and there paragon of Frank Shaughnessy the popular coach.

After a season of strenuous playing, the players of the senior, intermediate and junior teams felt that nothing could be more fitting as a last workout for the season with "Shag" than to assemble in the banquet hall of the Fitz and there partake of the food which he has denied them at training table throughout the season.

Accordingly arrangements have been completed for a royal feast whereby the players will demonstrate not only their ability to eat, drink and be merry but also their esteem for their coach.

is has proven himself a marvelous instructor of the most popular of all college sports and appreciation for his efforts is not lacking. Besides the guest of honour the hosts will also entertain Sir Arthur Currie, members of the Athletic Board and a few friends of the football club. There will be speeches by Coach Shaughnessy.

BASKETBALL TEAM SHOW GREAT FORM

Seniors Play M.A.A.A. Next Saturday
GAME FOR M.S.P.E.

Physical Eds. All Ready for Opening Match

The senior basketball team has been doing some strenuous work in preparation for its game next week with M.A.A.A. The regular practice was held last night at the Montreal High School and the men showed splendid form.

Coneh Van Wagner has not picked the team yet but Amaron, Little, Manson, and Turpel of last year's team are likely men. Hilton, Quackenbush, Mendelsohn, Boucher, and Brown have been showing up well.

Their game next week will be played at the M.A.A.A. Clubhouse on Peel Street, on December 8th. They will be up against a strong aggregation in the M.A.A.A. team. Last year M.A.A.A. had two senior teams in the City League and were runners-up for the Championship. This year only one senior team composed of the best men of last year's teams, will represent the Peel Street Club, and it is understood they are rapidly getting into shape for the coming contest. However, they will find McGill ready for them and the game should prove an interesting struggle, to say the least.

Tickets for this game will go on sale at the Union at one o'clock on Friday. A great interest is being shown in the coming game and a rush for tickets is anticipated. Everybody is therefore advised to be on hand at the specified time to secure a pasteboard. Special prices are being allowed to McGill students; 75c reserved seats are selling at 55c and 55c general admission for 35c.

On the same night the M.S.P.E. basketball team will play against the M.A.A.A. Senior girls. Last year the Physical Eds. played with varying success, being defeated by Varsity and Queens in very close matches, and defeating R.V.C. the Intercollegiate Champions. This year, it is understood their team has been somewhat strengthened. The girls have been practising for some time now and are getting into good condition. Their match against M.A.A.A. should prove to be, not the least interesting event of the evening.

The Intermediate "A" team has been practising with the Seniors at the Montreal High School. The men are showing excellent team work. On Saturday night of this week they will play an exhibition game against North Branch Y.M.C.A. at their headquarters on Park Avenue. P. J. Doyle has been assisting Coach Von Wagner as an honorary coach.

The Junior team will also play against North Branch Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night. Coach Manley has been doing splendid work with the men this year; he has been fortunate in having a wealth of material.

The Intermediate "B" team is also training under him.

Well Contested Baseball Game Played at High School

Meds. '27
The indoor baseball game between Arts '27 and Medicine '27, played yesterday at the Montreal High School gym, was won by the latter team. The game was close throughout, the final score being 14-13. Both teams played well and registered comparatively few errors considering the number of practices held.

The Arts team led up to the sixth innings when the Meds. found their bearings and pulled in enough runs to find themselves leading by three at the end of the inning.

In the next inning the Freshmen evened up the score, however, the Meds. who batted the last half made the winning run without finishing the inning.

The fielding of the winners was excellent, Quackenbush especially starring in the infield. Careful pitching on the part of Moffat was also a big factor in helping them to win.

For the losers Roth starred, while Boncarrelli's hitting and Zimand's pitching deserve mention.

The line-ups were as follows:

Arts.
Catcher	C. P. Smith
Pitcher	H. Glickman
1st. Base	P. W. Moffat
2nd. Base	M. Grossman
3rd. Base	W. A. Milligan
	G. Grzesik

ARTS VICTORIOUS OVER COMMERCE

Piled up Big Score in Baseball Game

Good team work and hard hitting were very much in evidence when Arts '25 downed Commerce '24 by the score of 33-18, in a fast and interesting scheduled baseball game at the High School Gym.

Both teams started out with a rush showing their keen desire to win. The superiority of the Arts team only became evident in the third inning when Bronson struck two men out and caught a fly from the third, thus preventing the Commerce men from scoring. From this time onward there was no doubt as to the outcome although the embryo accountants put up a game fight.

Davis, the Commerce pitcher after holding the Arts team to a moderate lead for the first six innings finally blew up in the seventh allowing ten men to cross the plate.

Besides Bronson, the Arts pitcher, Gardner, Nahn, and MacPhail played a good game for the winners.

The honors of upholding the losing end were divided among Chamberlain, Davis and Gardner.

The game was ably refereed by G. E. Wright. He was assisted at the bases by P. Smythe.

The score by innings was as follows:

Arts '25	5	5	3	3	5	4	10
Com '24	5	4	0	2	0	2	2

Final—33-15.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

SCIENCE LECTURES TO BE ILLUSTRATED

Juvenile Extension Course and Experimental Demonstrations

"Ships and the Sea" by Mr. Leslie H. Thompson is the subject for the first of a series of illustrated lectures under the auspices of the Juvenile Extension Lectures in Science of McGill University, which will be held in the Macdonald Physics Building, commencing Thursday Dec. 27 at 2 p.m.

"The Chemistry of Caves" by Professor N. N. Evans is the second of the series and will be held in the Macdonald Chemistry Building, on Dec. 28th. This will be followed by Dr. D. A. Key's lecture on "Drops and Bubbles" and "Sound, Music, and the Gramophone" by Dr. C. J. Lynde, both of which will be held in the Physics Building on Dec. 1st and Jan. 2nd, respectively.

The above lectures will be illustrated with suitable models, experiments, and lantern slides, and are intended for children only between the ages of 10 and 15 inclusive.

Due to the small seating capacity of the lecture room, it is advisable to make early applications for tickets to the Director of the Macdonald Physics Building on or after Dec. 1st. The price of the four tickets for all four lectures is $1.00 and tickets for separate lectures will not be sold.

Mr. Halstead further mentioned that there was a growing disrespect for American law particularly in conjunction with prohibition. It is with due regret that this should be the case for the American people enjoy the greatest amount of freedom and liberty which are so peculiarly denied the peoples of other countries. The Consul expressed his thanks to the American Club for the invitation and hoped to be with the organization again and again. Mr. Halstead is a fine example of American manhood and it is with due respects to the American Government also that the members of the Society have extended their invitation.

Following his address the members indulged in the repast which had its Thanksgiving flavor. Every lady felt at home when the turkey and the cranberry sauce were dished out. Music by the Venetian Gardens Orchestra was also served in connection with the meal. And what is more a prima donna who had just recently graduated from the Institution of Ziegfeld Folies Entertained with a vocal solo—"Chansonette."

After the dinner Mr. Van Wagner was called on to speak. He thought that McGill was a fine college and at the same time gave the American boys an ample opportunity to get acquainted with their Canadian neighbors. Mr. Van Wagner felt however that a spirit of boastfulness on the part of some Americans was rather disconcerting and of no avail. He then gave a toast to the "stars and stripes" which was followed by a toast to the King. The next man who spoke was Tinkess. He gave a toast to the "Alma Mater."

The president of the club then called on Professor Horst Oertel, honorary president of the club. Professor Oertel did feel it an honor to act in the capacity given him and was indeed glad to have the invitation extended to him by men, the majority of whom were not in the Faculty of Medicine and hence would not be prompted by the idea of passing the examination as a result.

He told the men how thankful they should be for the conveniences they enjoy today. In the days of yore when he attended Yale only one bath was to be had for the entire institution. And Saturday afternoon when the students were free they innoculated themselves with some precious aqua—if any were fortunate to be at the head of the line which constituted no less than a few hundred.

He told the students of McGill that the Americans as a rule are too content with material progress and have paid little attention with the powers of the organizations. And those American men who live abroad

THEATRE FRANCAISE

In the film, "Slippy McKee," this week's feature attraction at the Theatre Francaise, is told the love story of a little southern girl, a story which in itself holds the attention of the audience throughout, largely because of the admirable acting of Colleen Moore. But the main interest centres about the character of "Slippy McKee," safe-cracker par excellence, and his fight to give up his old ways of life. His character as portrayed has a very strong appeal because of its human side.

Harry Carey in "Desert Driven" supplies thrills aptly in true Western fashion, while a News Reel and a Comedy complete a most acceptable program.

should not alienate themselves from their country; it is not a wise policy to act as an independent unit. In fact the Americans abroad should look ahead to make safe the future of their country and a unity amongst nations.

S. W. Heatherington member of the Faculty at MacDonald was then introduced. He also maintained that the Americans were bombastic as a nation, claiming that they overestimated their true value.

This was followed by amusing stories which were told by Greene Rosenthal, Baeny, Lathrop and De Rosa.

The dinner ended appropriately with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the McGill cheer. Some remained behind for the dancing.

NOMINATIONS FOR STUDENTS' COUNCIL CLOSE WITH TWO ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

S. D. Pierce of Law and T. R. Delahay of Medicine Returned Without Opposition. All Other Positions to be Contested—Four Nominees in Science—Election Day Monday December 10.

Sydney D. Pierce of the Faculty of Law, and T. R. Delahay of the Faculty of Medicine were yesterday elected by acclamation to the position of faculty representatives on the Students' Council for the session 1923-24 when only one man was nominated by each of these faculties. The positions in the other faculties will be contested. The following are the men nominated: Arts: T. F. Mitchell, A. Gordon Nairn; Dentistry: Victor Jekill, H. Munroe; Law: Sydney D. Pierce; Medicine: T. R. Delahay; Science: D. Stuart, C. H. Napier, Selby Cope, Geoffrey M. Warren.

Elections will be held in each of the faculties in which the positions are contested, on Monday, December, 10th. Electors in each faculty cast their votes in their own buildings, as ballot boxes have been placed there for their convenience.

Present indications would point towards very close contests especially in the faculty of Science where four men have been nominated. Those of the other faculties that did not send up their representatives by acclamation, have each two men to choose from.

"We, the undersigned, hereby nominate T. F. Mitchell, Commerce '25, as Arts representative on the Students' Council for the session 1923-24."

G. A. Grimson, J. G. Glasco, F. W. Fairman, J. J. Quinlan, S. D. McRae, R. B. Wilson, A. D. Starke, D. R. Morrison, Ross Wilson, J. Herbert Murphy.

"We, the undersigned, hereby nominate A. Gordon Nairn, as Arts representative on the Students' Council for 1923-24."

FINAL DEBATE HELD BY ARTS

great deal of jealousy existing among the different states. Consequently power was broken up between central and local authorities. No longer does the jealousy exist, but the regulations imposed by the jealousy do. He gave, as an instance of this, the criminal law with its varying harshness due to local control. The majority, however, strongly it may feel, is powerless to act.

There is a regulation in the American Constitution which forbids interference in private property. Cohen claimed that this regulation made a certain bill, designed to restrict the employment of women and children, unconditional. The criterion of democracy is the rule of majority. In the United States the spirit of democracy is hampered, in Great Britain it has full scope.

Shepherd the leader of the negative then spoke. Shepherd believed that there had never been a truly democratic country and that there never would be. He remembered how a traveller in the United States hears the word "democracy" on every lip. But, he said, it is far different in England. There the general atmosphere has a cold reserve. The opinion is that the Government should be in the hands of an educated few. Such a system tends to an oligarchical type of government.

Shepherd mentioned the Established Church in England and the absence of any party in such matters in America. He asked his hearers whether it is not more democratic to give no privileges to any particular sect. Not only is the representation given to the bishops of the Church of England in the House of Lords, but also the right of an hereditary seat in this body. The presence of these hereditary members and the fact that members are elected for life gives the House of Lords a listlessness and noticeable lack of energy. In America where members of the Upper House are elected for a period of six years there is a greater likelihood of activity.

Again, Shepherd pointed out that in the United States a man must live in the constituency he represents. This is not so in Great Britain. It seems impossible for a man to adequately represent people he does not know. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he thought the federal system of government the best. For in Great Britain, under the present system, a representative from a Scotch fishing-village can make a motion regarding a ditch in Wales.

Kellaway, second for the affirmative, pointed out what he thought to be the fundamental difference in the systems. In the Parliamentary system the legislative and executive bodies are one and the same, while in residential there are separate. This we lead to a great deal of confusion and a shifting of the responsibility. The President cannot control Congress, and though the opposition in Congress may have a majority it cannot expel the President from office.

In America, Kellaway continued, the people vote not for a policy but for a man. They cannot as the English can, vote on definite policies which the Government will carry out. Then the shifting of the responsibility, whereby the culprit cannot be traced, is one of the great dangers of American system.

Copland, the last speaker for the negative, cited the amendments that have been made in the American Constitution. He explained that it is not difficult to bring in changes. The ineffectiveness that is likely to result from cabinets composed of a score of members as in Great Britain was contrasted with the activity of a small, compact one like the American. He emphasized the danger of retroactive laws such as can be passed in the British Houses. Copland ended his address with a sentence from Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg—"Let us highly resolve that this nation shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Cohen successfully refuted several of his opponents' assertions in his rebuttal.

When the judges had withdrawn, Teakle announced the nomination of Nairn as representative for Arts on the Students' Council. Nairn was compelled to address the meeting. After saying a few words he received tremendous applause.

The judges, Prof. Matthews, Mr. MacDermot and Mr. Elliot gave their decision in favour of the affirmative, and chose Cohen and Shepherd as the two best speakers. Mr. MacDermot, a graduate of McGill, a Rhodes scholar, and past editor of the Daily, VI. Closer co-operation between the C. N. R. and C. P. R. to obviate unprofitable and superfluous competition in certain districts; and to improve the service where necessary.

VII. Adequate effective naval and aerial contributions to Imperial Defence.

VIII. Vigorous measures to conserve our forest resources and to stop the rapid and alarming depletion of our pulp wood reserve by foreign interests.

MOTION FOR ADOPTION

The motion for the adoption of the speech was ably made by Mr. McAndrew, the member for Verdun who stressed the wisdom and sagacity of the Government as exemplified in its platform. Mr. Silverstone of the Opposition took particular exception to the presumption of the Government in seeking to advise the Imperial Government upon its foreign policy.

A member of the Opposition desired to know who was responsible for the press notice which read—"Parliament to retain humorous nature: Bert Wells appointed Premier." Sheceding the mirth which greeted this statement, the Speaker brought order out of the pandemonium by recalling to the deputies that Questions and Points of Order do not admit of debate.

Opposition—"We hold the Government responsible for the bad liquor served during electioneering."

Government—"The previous speaker was Minister of Health in the late administration and therefore is himself responsible for the present."

The Rt. Hon. Premier, answering a charge from the opposite side of the House, maintained that Canada had earned the right to counsel the Imperial Government in view of its new status among nations. The Government were seemingly unable to answer a query from the Opposition as to whether they were considering the establishment of a home for superannuated cake-eaters and bow-legged flappers.

At this juncture, a great commotion occurred among the Cross Benches and another volley of questions assailed the Government. Mr. Silverstone, the member for Athabaska desired to know if the Cabinet included a Minister of Public Safety, and what was to be done regarding the wearing of galoshes. This seemed to arouse the ire of his own colleagues, for one of the self-styled full-fledged Cross-Benchers promptly and publicly disowned him.

"Canada presents a heritage of potentialities, of civic freedom, and liberty," said the member for Verdun. "If the Government must take the blame for post-war reversals which it could not avert, it claims praise for the prosperity and evidences of divine graces which Canada witnesses."

"Recovery of national property is the keynote of the Government's policy, and since this is not feasible until Europe is rehabilitated we shall advance proposals for the withdrawal of France from the Ruhr and the recognition of the Soviet Russia."

The Hon. Mr. Forsey, member for St. Vincent de Paul, made a spirited address in seconding the adoption of the speech from the Throne. To promote his knowledge of International Law, he presented the leader of His Majesty's loyal Opposition with a copy of the B. N. A. act, in refutation of the Opposition's contention that the Government was not justified in attempting to advise the Imperial Government on Foreign Policy.

LEADER OF OPPOSITION

H. Batshaw the Leader of the Opposition claimed that the motion of adoption of the speech from the throne consisted of a series of meaningless words and pious platitudes. He claimed that they had failed to substantiate their daring in bringing up the question of the Ruhr (cheers). He extended to the government his sympathy and then proceeded to outline the Ruhr question, going hurriedly over its historical background. He spent considerable time explaining the French attitude at the point. By the treaty of Versailles France was to receive 52 per cent of the reparation and Great Britain only 22 per cent. Canada has then spoke. He briefly reviewed the situation in world politics. He spoke of the League of Nations and League of Youth. He remarked on a certain timidity of the students in expressing their views. He said that as the students of Montreal they ought to be a perfect ferment of thought.

Refreshments were served in the Cafeteria. There, after repeated cries of "We want Tommy," Prof. Matthews spoke. The Union having been depleted of food, the meeting broke up.

not seen the atrocities that were perpetrated in France and cannot therefore feel with her. France wants to be assured that in the case of attack she have the assistance of Great Britain. She wants alliance in fact as well as in name. The leader of the Opposition could not see why France should be refused security, the ally good enough for Great Britain in war is good enough for her in peace. (cheers)

Concluding his remarks, Batshaw said that this interference would bring Canada no good. America was still unwilling to enter European politics, therefore an alliance of Britain and France was the only possible way to secure peace in Europe. "If the government is as strong as Karthago, then 'Karthago delenda est' were the leader of the oppositions closing words."

At this juncture one of the members on the cross benches who stated that he had elected himself then rose to support the government. Since Canada had sent men to fight for the Empire she should have a say in its external affairs was his contention.

A member of the government then rose and vehemently stated that the criticism which had come from the opposition was the criticism of the ill-informed. The party calling itself constitutional had proposed to deal with education, a matter that came under the control of the Provincial Parliament. This in the speaker's opinion, was far from being constitutional.

The Opposition member for Verdun here suggested that it was wrong for Canada to dabble in foreign politics when there is so much to do right in the Dominion. This member then proceeded to outline the terms of the treaty of Versailles which he regarded as unstatesmanlike, but he was rudely interrupted by the falling of several chairs. On conclusion of the disturbance his time was declared by the speaker to be up.

The Prime Minister then declared that the facts put forward by His Majesty's most loyal opposition only dealt with one side of the question. France they had claimed, had been devastated and had got nothing out of the war, and yet there are at the present time only one thousand unemployed in France while there are over a million and a half in Britain. In Britain the tax at present is five shillings on the pound while France is reputed to have the lowest tax of any nation in the world. Yet France refuses to pay her war debts, a thing which Britain has done some years ago. Britain is far from desiring to oppose France, but on the other hand is trying to save France from herself.

Canada is vitally interested in European politics because she cannot make progress while Europe is diseased. Europe at the present time is deadly sick and France is trying to kill her. The government is not presuming to dictate to His Majesty the King, but is merely offering a suggestion. The government, concluded the Prime Minister, will either stand or fall on the Speech from the Throne.

CHANGES PARTIES

Considerable commotion was caused when a member of the opposition took exception to certain utterings of his own leader. Batshaw then invited him to take his place on the other side of the house. This he did, at the same time explaining that he intended doing so prior to the kind invitation which he had received. (Cheers). This member explained that he thought it far better to disregard party loyalty and vote in the interests of the country.

A member on the cross benches here interrupted by inquiring what had become of the surplus of the Quebec Liquor Commission and when free beer was to be distributed. He was sharply called to order, and had it explained to him that the house was the one at Ottawa and not at Quebec.

The government then claimed that that Constitutional Party was very liberal. Even the slave of Tutankamen which might be perceived over the speaker had turned away her head in disgust. Here the leader of the opposition pointed out that they still had with them the moon. The moon reiterated a member of the government, is the sign of lunacy. The opposition sharply rejoined by stating that Egypt is the land of mummies.

It was shown that at the present time France has a larger standing army than Germany had before the war, having recruited many men from her African possessions. Canada should think of poor Germany and not of France. Under conditions as they now exist, Germany will eventually become communist or monarchic and at both of these possibilities the government looked askance. The government also pointed out that the opposition had evaded the Russian question.

At the pleasure of the house fifteen minutes were added to the time for the session. The remainder of the time was taken up for the most part by B. Cohen, Minister of Finance and Foreign Affairs, who pointed out that the parliament of McGill University could discuss what it pleased. A member on the cross benches here asked the Minister, who persisted in keeping his hands in his pockets, whether he was afraid to trust his

THE THREE NUTS

Dear Three Nuts,—Although I consider myself to be a typical co-ed, I cannot say that I have been pleased by the rather 'mushy' type of letters that have been appearing in your column lately, and for this reason I have decided to write you one in which a few perfectly sensible questions are asked.

The other night, in company with several of my friends who are on the staff of a "large daily paper," I attended a game of water polo in the tank which belongs to the Knights of Columbus, and which was played between McGill and M. S. C.

Now the questions which I would like to ask you are about the game itself.

1. Are the players allowed to swallow water during the progress of the game?

2. If so, what would happen if the tank got dry?

Thank You.

Nuts Note:—The Nuts are sorry that they have not made themselves perfectly clear, as their correspondent appears to have misunderstood them. Being Nuts, they find themselves incapable of answering sensible questions.

WORKOUT OF HOCKEY SQUAD IN THE UNION

The hockey squad worked out last Wednesday night in the Union Ballroom, the coach putting the men through some stiff setting-up work. This will continue, tonight, at the same hour. All men are urged to turn out to these workouts, tedious as they may seem. The teams should, with luck, be on the ice by next week, and condition will be all to the good then.

A room has been put in order in the basement of the Union for shooting practice. This is available all day, any any member of the squad is free to go down and put in some time at the dummy nets. Miss Oliver, in the office, will have the picks, and they can be obtained from her when anyone wishes to use them. They must be returned to her when practice is completed.

AFTER THE BALL WAS OVER

We strolled into the garden;
I took her by the hand
And gazed into her eyes and said:
"I'd like to be your man."
An easy laugh responded,
"I'm sure 'twas not her own."
I gazed again dumbfounded—
Good Lord! The Chaperon!
